

SILA: Liability Coverage

Description The objectives of this course are to help agents understand the relationship between liability and tort law and to show how liability coverage addresses this relationship. In most areas of modern life there are laws that define the duties citizens must observe. These regulations have come about as a result of the recognition that when people interact, problems can arise. The concepts of negligence, intentional and non-intentional, malpractice, and various types of liabilities are covered. The course concludes with the different types of liability insurance policies available. Review questions appear throughout the text.
